STOP THE THIEVES!!!

LAST Wedneſday Evening, October 19, between the hours of 7 and 10 o'clock, the bed room of Mr Ricketts in O'Eller's hotel was entered, either by means of falſe keys, or at the window, by ſome villain or villains, who muſt have been acquainted with the ſituation of the houſe (as the door was found locked after they had committed the theft) who took away from amongſt ſeveral trunks, ONE which contained a valuable part of Mr. Rickett's property, but of which he is not yet able to aſcertain the contents particularly. After bringing the ſaid trunk away, and emptying it of upwards of a thouſand dollars in caſh and bank notes, the villains left it behind the circus, during the time that the performances of the evening were going forward.

It is earneſtly requeſted, that all tavern-keepers on the ſtage roads, and the ferry houſes, as well as all civil officers, may be watchful in ſecuring ſuſpicious perſons, who may have a redundance of caſh, which their appearance would by no means beſpeak them to be poſſeſſed of.

FREDERICKSBURG, October 19.

Yeſterday was run over the courſe near this town a race of four mile heats. The beautiful Virago, the property of Mr. Taylor, took the purſe from Mr. Page's black horſe, and Mr. Thornton Alexander's black colt, without a touch of the whip.

For the Republican Citizen.

Mr. Mullin,

Not to your ſentiments as a man, but to your impartiality as a printer, the author looks for the inſertion of the following:

Laſt night, as I lay on my bed,
This curious dream came in my head,
That a mod'rate man appeared,
——————and ſaid,

If Mr. Jefferſon is elected Preſident of the United States, all the preſent officers of government will be put out of office. Perhaps Burr will fill the place of Pickering, as ſecretary of ſtate, and the 18 virtuous Virginians will canvas for the other vacant offices. Pinckney will be recalled from France, and Maſon (that treaty hero) will be ſubſtituted. In 15 months we will be involved in a ruinous war, which will terminate in the fall of the preſent fabric of government, and a diſunion of the ſtates. In the mean time, every Frenchman in America will become a penſioner. On the other hand, if Mr. Adams is elected to that important office, which he alone is beſt able to fill, the citizens of America will walk forth to their fields in peace; there will be no revolution among the preſent officers of government; wholeſome laws will be adminiſtered to us; the face of the republic, from Georgia to New-Hampſhire, will be clothed with abundance and peace; the people will be united; our rivers will ſwell with commerce; our villages in a few years will grow to cities; and our United Eagle will float the moſt reſpectable of flags, in all the ports, rivers and bays in the univerſe.

LATE Foreign Intelligence,

BY THE AMERICA, CAPT. EWING.

Head-quarters of his royal highneſs the Archduke Charles; Zell, near Wurtzburg, Sept. 5, 1796.

MY LORD,

Yeſterday the citadel of Wurtzburg capitulated; the garriſon, to the number of 700 men, ſurrendered themſelves priſoners of war. General Belmont chief of the French artillery, is among the number.

A prodigious quantity of ſtores, of ammunition, and proviſions, has been found in the town and citadel; partly left there by the Auſtrians, partly collected by requiſition from the neighbouring country.

Intelligence is received that the enemy has abandoned in Schweinfurt, ſeventy pieces of artillery, which he was unable to tranſport.

From the reports of the corps in front, there is every reaſon to believe that the enemy has decidedly quitted the Meyn, and directed his retreat to Fulda. The light troops which have been ſent in purſuit, continually bring in priſoners & baggage; and the Peaſantry, exaſperated at the unheard of outrages of the enemy, has riſen in many parts, and deliver up or deſtroy all the ſtragglers who fall into their hands.

His roy l highneſs, determined to perſevere in the ſame line of operations, this day detached Col. Count Meerfeldt, with ten ſquadrons of light cavalry, to form a junction with the garriſons of Manheim and of Mayence; by which means a corps of 12 or 15,000 men will be enabled to act in the rear of the enemy. From the diſtinguiſhed abilities of the officer to whom this enterpriſe is entruſted, the greateſt hopes are entertained of its ſucceſs.

The army moves this day towards Wertheim; and the head-quarters will be to-morrow at Reuſingen.

By the laſt accounts received from the other ſide of the Danube, it appears that general La Tour ſtill maintained himſelf in front of Munich; but the ſucceſſes on this ſide had not then produced the expected effect, of forcing general Moreau to a retreat. It hardly ſeems poſſible that he ſhould now venture to delay it.

I have the honor to be, &c.
ROBERT ANSTRUTHER,
Captain 3d Guard.

Tranſlated for the AURORA, from Hamburg papers.

MILAN, September 3.

Buonapare has iſſued two important proclamations. The firſt relates to the eſtabliſhment of a military commiſſion which ſhall be compoſed of five members, whoſe buſineſs it is to examine every complaint againſt military agents for vexatory extortions.

In the ſecond proclamation addreſſed to the Tyrolians, he threatens with fire and pillage all thoſe who ſhall attempt to oppoſe the peaceable march of the French into their territory; at the ſame time he invites them to conſider that the French Republic does not ſtrive to make conqueſts beyond her natural boundaries, the Alps and the Rhine; and that ſhe might very well ſuffer Tyrol to remain included within the future boundaries of Auſtria.

VIENNA, September 7.

There is yet a talk of peace here notwithſtanding the greateſt preparations for war. The many conferences between the Pruſſian miniſter Lucherine and Baron Thugut give riſe to this. However it does not appear that peace altho' ſo ardently wiſhed for will ſoon be concluded. The demands of the French are exorbitant. Lehrbach, who is now in Tyrol is alſo inveſted with powers to open a negociation.

Wurmſer has ſent word that the French had raiſed a corps of 45,000 men in Italy, who are deſtined to attack the moſt dangerous poſts. A ſufficient number of French are divided among them, to keep them in order. They are alſo threatened with being fired at with grape-ſhot if they will not do their duty. Nevertheleſs Wurmſer makes no doubt but the great majority of theſe Italians will join him, if he was only again put in a ſituation to advance againſt the enemy.

COBLENTZ, Sept. 9.
6 o'clock in the evening.

The heavy baggage of Jourdan paſſes this moment through this town. The French troops are concentrating in the environs of Wiſbaden, where a general and deciſive battle is expected. At leaſt it is certain that thoſe troops, which were yeſterday poſted between Neuwied, Dierdorf and Hachenburgh, advanced this day towards Wiſbaden.

The ſiege of Ehrenbreitſtein is carried on with redoubled activity, and for that purpoſe the French continue to ſend over all kind of ammunition. Laſt night the garriſon of the fortreſs let ſome rockets fly, which probably ſerved to inform the Auſtrians of the ſituation of the place; the ſame day the French pioneers were harraſſed on all points. To-day all is quiet.

MUNCHENAU, September 9.

The Auſtrian general La Tour has again been forced, after a very bloody engagement, to fall back, and evacuate the fortreſs of Landſhut and his poſition behind the Iſer. The French light troops purſued him to within a ſhort diſtance of Braunau, where he has retreated in order to ſtop the further progreſs of the French in Auſtria. On this ſide the French general Moreau, whoſe army amounts to 82,000 men, is complete maſter of Bavaria, and it is generally believed that the corps of general Ferino has not only paſſed the Inn near Burkerſhauſen, and entered Upper Auſtria, but alſo that two conſiderable French corps are advancing rapidly along the Inn and Iſer to Inſpruck, which is no more than ſixty miles from this city.

Tranſlated for the American Daily Advertiſer.

HASSIA, September 6.

A meſſenger who arrived here juſt now brings the account that the fort of Wurtzburg ſurrendered on the 4th inſt. in the morning. The engagement near Wurtzburg on the 3d, was uncommonly murderous. The French firſt chief of artillery, and general of diviſion, Bellemont, was taken priſoner. The Engliſh colonel Crawford who was mortally wounded near Anberg, and afterwards taken priſoner, was delivered up at the requeſt of the Archduke.

FRANKFORT, September 6.

The French retreat much quicker towards the Lahn and the Lower Rhine, than they formerly advanced. Franconia is totally evacuated, ſome few frontier places excepted. A number of the clerks and ſecretaries of the different commiſſioners have been wounded by the armed Franconian peaſants. Yeſterday a new hoſpital was erected in the Compoſtell, beſides the great one in the Germanic hotel, where moſt all the ſoldiers bro't there, were ſuch as had been wounded by the peaſants. Ten peaſants who had either plundered ſome baggage waggons, near Aſchaffenburgh, or had been found armed, were ſhot here by the French, before the gate of Saſhſenhauſen.

The diviſion of generals Kleber and Lefebvre retreat by Wetzlar, towards the Lahn, and to Siegen—another diviſion of the French is ſaid to march againſt Darmſtadt, Groſgerau and Oppenheim. In this direction, they will find the garriſons of Manheim and Mentz in their way, and they may get into a bad ſituation.

If the Imperialiſts can advance with a ſufficient force, it is ſuppoſed that the French will not be able to maintain themſelves on the Lahn, as they have loſt a great deal of ammunition, and have been obliged to leave moſt all their artillery behind.

September 9.

Our city is now again occupied by the Imperialiſts, and the Imperial gazette now again decorated with the Roman Eagle, has the following paragraph:

"The French left this city at three o'clock this morning, without the leaſt diſorder, after having had poſſeſſion of the ſame from the time they marched in on the 16th July, for the ſpace of 54 days.—The ſmall garriſon which remained here laſt night, took the following precautions to ſecure their retreat. On the outer gates of the city, they ſawed off the head timber of the bridges: on the ſtone bridge over the Mayne they threw the wooden part of the bridge into the river: they wanted to blow up a part of the ſtone work, but fortunately gave up their deſign; they locked all the gates, and threw the keys of the Boorkenheim gate into the ditch.

"This morning, at half paſt 2 o'clock the imperial premier lieutenant of the Karazay light horſe, count de Miern, together with captain de Schmuttermaye of the Blankenſtein huſſars, entered the city with 25 horſes, after having taken priſoners a ſmall French poſt of 7 men, which probably had been forgotten. After a ſhort ſtay in the city, he took his road through the Boorkenheim gate towards Horteſt, and ſoon after his men brought in a number of French priſoners. Several detachments of imperial troops, particularly cavalry, paſſed this day through this city, and along the ſame route towards Homburg and Hocht.

"The vanguard of the imperial major-general prince Lichtenſtein purſued the French from Wurtzburgh towards Hummelsburgh; having taken the road towards Fulda, the prince diſpatched 600 horſe towards Saalmunſter and Gelnhaaſen, who arrived there on the 5th. After ſeveral ſevere ſkirmiſhes, the French were cut off from the road to Frankfort.

"In the purſuit by Briſtein towards Wetzler, 40 baggage waggons were taken from them, and 150 priſoners. On the 7th inſt. an engagement took place near Hanoy, wherein two, and at Friedburg five, baggage-waggons were taken. This vanguard marched this day through this city towards Konigſtein.

FRIEDBERG (Watleravia) Sept. 12.

Since the 9th, we have got the imperialiſts here, after the French had occupied our city for 62 days.

The Witterau has ſuffered greatly by the retreat of general Jourdan's army, who marched through the midſt of the country. Several villages have loſt all their cattle, and all their effects. In a place called Liſberg, in Heſſen Darmſtadt, the peaſants oppoſed the French; the place was thereupon ſet on fire, and the miniſter, a man of 70 years of age, together with 25 inhabitants, loſt their lives. The villages of Leigeſtern, Stingeforth, Weiſel, &c. are partly plundered and partly burnt. When the peaſants in ſeveral of the diſtricts of Heſſen Darmſtadt, learned that the retreat of the French would be directed through thoſe parts, they collected to the number of 4,000, under the command of M. de Schenk, and waited for the retreating French column in the mountains near Alſfeldt. When the French advanced, the peaſants ſtood there fully armed in parade. The French cavalry aſtoniſhed drew their ſwords, Mr. de S. then rode up to the French general, and declared, that his army of peaſants was 15,000 ſtrong; that they were convened only for the purpoſe of protecting the country from being plundered; that it was not their intention in the leaſt to moleſt the retreat of the French, but that they were determined to deſtroy them all if they commenced plundering. The French then quietly proceeded.

Among the imperial generals who paſſed through theſe parts, in purſuit of the French, was prince Frederick of Orange.

FROM THE FRONTIERS OF BAVARIA,
September 7.

Yeſterday the imperialiſts and the corps of the prince de Conde, were obliged to quit their advantageous poſition on the other ſide of the Iſer oppoſite Manchen, in order not to be outflanked by the republicans. The latter are now in poſſeſſion of the Iſer. In the engagement on the firſt of September, near Gergſenfeldt, the imperialiſts had to leave behind ſeveral cannon, the French had likewiſe a great many wounded. The day before yeſterday the head-quarters of general Moreau were already in Wolznach. The ceſſation of arms between Bavaria and France is ſaid to be agreed upon; it is ſaid to be concluded at Villenegen, and the elector, beſide great requiſitions in kind, is to pay thirty millions of ready caſh to the republic.

The French are ſaid to have entered Freyſingen. The army of general Moreau conſiſts of 80,000 men.

BILBOA, September 28.

On the 25th inſtant, orders arrived from Madrid to lay an embargo on all Engliſh veſſels in this port; but there happened not to be a ſingle veſſel of that nation at Bilboa at that time. On the 26th a neutral veſſel entered this port, which had been examined by four frigates and a brig under Engliſh colours cruizing off this port.

HAMBURGH, September 16.

The Erlangen gazette ſays, that 8,600 French troops, are on their march from Straſburgh, &c. to join the army of Jourdan, and that Pichegru is to have the command of the army of the Sambre and Meuſe in lieu of the laſt mentioned general.

It is reported that in the neighbourhood of Wetzlaer a very ſevere engagement took place between the French and the garriſon of Mayence, which turned out much to the diſadvantage of the former.

Two thouſand Hungarians have paſſed through Vienna on waggons, proceeding to reinforce general field marſhal Latour.

The elector of Saxony, who had 60,000 men under arms, had notified the emperor, he had concluded a peace with the French, and that Buonaparte was penetrating into Tirol.

A courier from Jourdan was captured by the Auſtrians with diſpatches for Moreau, relating the ſituation of the army in conſequence of the Auſtrian ſucceſſes.

September 17.

His majeſty the king of Sweden, under the name of the count de Haga, and the duke regent, under that of the count de Waſa, arrived at St. Peterſburg on the 24th of Auguſt laſt.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Auguſt 10.

The French ambaſſador, M. Verninac has the moſt decided influence with the Porte, and is in a manner looked upon as the director-general of the political affairs of the ſame. After ſeveral late meetings of the divan, the armaments here are carried on with the greateſt alacrity; and orders have been diſpatched to the pachas in the European and Aſiatic provinces, to furniſh their contingents of troops. That thoſe preparations are not intended againſt the rebels in Romelia, is moſt certain. For the chief thereof, Sinap, having been beaten, and his head ſent hither, the army is almoſt totally diſperſed; and the beylerbeg, who hitherto commanded near Adrianople, has received orders to advance with 40,000 men, towards the Danube. This march makes a great deal of noiſe here. The French that are here ſay publicly, that it is intended by this march of the Turkiſh troops, to force the emperor to make peace with the French, in order that the latter may be enabled to encreaſe her marine, and to turn all her efforts againſt England. Theſe circumſtances have occaſioned here the report of an approaching rupture with a peaceful neighbour, whoſe power, and the preſervation thereof, is perhaps of more conſequence for the Porte, than is commonly ſuppoſed.

In the mean time, the Porte has freſh rebels to contend with, in the interior of the empire. The pacha of Midden is marched with a conſiderable corps, to take poſſeſſion of the cities of Niſſa and Sophia. To the latter, 8000 men have been ſent, in order to entrench themſelves there, until the reſt of the troops, which have been ordered, ſhall arrive. The pacha, meanwhile, has a great number of friends in the army, as well as at court, who ſecretly favour him, and give him information of all that paſſes.

The pacha of Scutari has likewiſe raiſed the ſtandard of rebellion again. At the head of 6000 men, he makes all the neighbouring pachas tremble, and has actually defeated two of them entirely. His intention is to take revenge of the Montenegrines, on account of the inſults and damages he and his ſubjects have ſuffered on ſeveral occaſions from them. All enemies that fall into his hands are moſt barbarouſly murdered. The Porte has ſent orders to the pacha of Boſnia, and to all the pachas of Albania, immediately to put themſelves at the head of their troops, in order to oppoſe the rebellious pacha.

DRESDEN, September 5.

The imperial miniſter, count de Slick, has proteſted, in a particular declaration, in a moſt ſolemn manner, againſt the ſurrender of the city of Nuremberg and its territory to the king of Pruſſia.—The free imperial city of Dunkelſbuke, is likewiſe going to ſubmit to the ſovereignty of the king of Pruſſia.

COLOGNE, September 13.

The French head-quarters are already transferred to Andernach, on this ſide of the Rhine. Laſt night an expreſs arrived here from that place, with orders to remove the magazines here to a place of ſafety. Great part of the French Sambre & Meuſe army, is making through the territories of Treves towards Luxembourg, in order to cover that neighbourhood. The baggage of generals Lefebvre and Kleber is arrived here, and about 20 waggons loaded with money.

HEIDELBERG, September 12.

It is ſuppoſed, that we ſhall have ſoon ſome ſerious work in this neighbourhood. Several thouſand men, cavalry of the army of the archduke, have arrived here. They have this day been joined by a part of the garriſon of Manheim, at Schwetzingar, and marched towards Bruchſal, where the garriſon of Philipſburg, the ſiege whereof the French have entirely raiſed, will join them. We expect therefore an engagement between the imperialiſts and the French, who have here about 4000 men under general Eckenneayer. The peaſants carried lately 180 French priſoners, and two pieces of cannon, through this place to Manheim, without any further military eſcort.

ELECTION.

A writer in a Boſton paper, on the ſubject of the approaching election, ſays,

"Truly unfortunate would it be for our country, if the republican intereſt was likely to be divided upon this great deciſion—if there were a number of candidates, all of whom would be ſupported by their particular friends and neighbours, from a perſuaſion that all had equal pretenſions, and would ſtand an equal chance. Happily this is not the caſe—the reſplendent abilities, the faithful ſervices and the inflexible patriotiſm of the Vice Preſident of the United States, the illuſtrious ADAMS, have long pointed him out in the minds of all well-informed men, as the ſucceſſor of WASHINGTON. That Mr. ADAMS's election will be diſputed is not doubted—but, by whom—by thoſe who hate his virtues, dread his talents, and tremble at his firmneſs. The ſame conſiderations which induce the enemies of our government to oppoſe him, ſhould unite its friends in the ſtrongeſt bonds of union.

"Its own welfare, and the deſtiny of poſterity, are involved in the uſe of which the preſent generation ſhall make of its privileges. And after having laid ſo fair a foundation, Gracious Heaven forbid, that we ſhould ourſelves deſtroy it. An improper choice of a Preſident at this period, might undo all that Waſhington has laboured to accompliſh—give a dangerous turn to our foreign relations—unhinge the machine of ſtate, and perhaps furniſh the votaries of deſpotiſm with a freſh argument in favor of their darling maxim, that mankind were not made to be free.

Mr. FENNO,

Whence this extraordinary exertion in favour of Mr. Jefferſon? and why are ſo many handbills in circulation villifying Mr. Adams? At whoſe expence is this buſineſs conducted? and what is the object of Mr. Jefferſon & his partizans? My ſuſpicions are awakened by the moſt unfair and unjuſt proceedings of the anti-federal party; and on enquiry I am informed, that a congreſs was held at Mr. Jefferſon's houſe laſt year, at which all this buſineſs was preconcerted, and all the lies invented. Is it not extremely curious to obſerve, that while the honeſt federal republicans are continually reſigning, from the firſt offices, becauſe of the inſufficiency for maintenance in the proviſion attached to theſe offices, we find the hungry excluſive patriots ſtirring all the elements to get into places, which honeſt and prudent men find unprofitable?

What can this mean? Do the antifederaliſts hope to effect important changes in the fiſcal department in their favour? or is foreign gold to be obtained by the event of their appointment to offices? Surely they have ſomething in view to balance their accounts, or their induſtry and calumny would not be ſo extraordinary.

BY THIS DAY's MAILS.

BOSTON, October 18.

It is ſaid that admiral GRAVES arrived at Halifax the week before laſt from England, with an additional naval force for that ſtation, and ſeveral tranſports with freſh troops for the garriſon. The news comes by the way of Shelburne.

October 19.

NEWFOUNDLAND.

The attack on the iſland of St. Johns, by a French ſquadron, is confirmed; with the deſtruction of the hamlets at Bull's Bay and Placentia. A veſſel from thence, arrived yeſterday, in three weeks—by her we learn, that the fleet conſiſted of ten ſail, almoſt all of the line; but not ſuppoſed to have many troops on board—that they had not attempted the town of St. Johns, but continued cruiſing off the coaſt. It was however ſuppoſed they would make the attack; and would be reſiſted, as the iſland could raiſe nearly 7000 men. A diſpatch had been ſent to Admiral Murray, who could not ſend any aſſiſtance. Capt. Girdler at ſea ſpoke a brig two days ſail to the Eaſt of Newfoundland, and was informed by her, that a fleet of 10 ſail of the line, and two frigates had taken Newfoundland, a 50 gun ſhip and two frigates under Ad. Wallace. The brig had diſpatches for England. This laſt is the lateſt. A Marblehead fiſhing ſchooner was ſpoke having paſſengers from Newfoundland on board.

Capt. Curtin from Halifax, about 15 days ſince, informs that admiral Murray lay there, with a 74 and 4 frigates—the people expected a viſit from the French. He ſuppoſes there are about 1000 troops there.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 12.

The retreat of the army of the Sambre and Meuſe, under gen. Jourdan, is more ſerious and deciſive, than it was at firſt thought to be. The republicans being conſtantly purſued and attacked by an enemy of ſuperior force, have been compelled to fly in ſuch a hurry, that they were obliged to leave artillery, baggage, and in particular an amazing number of killed and priſoners behind them. The worſt yet remains. The different columns of general Jourdan's army had to act ſeparately in a country which is divided into narrow paſſes, and thus every one was ſeparately worſted in a dreadful manner. In ſuch a preſſing ſituation a decided part was to be taken, in order to ſave the remains of the army, and therefore gen. Jourdan gave orders to all theſe columns to rendezvous on the right bank of the Mein. The ſtaff of ſaid army was already at Frankfort on the 5th inſt. and alſo troops at or about that city entirely worn down by fatigue and hardſhips, and moſt part without clothes and ſhoes. Theſe troops arriving in great diſorder it is to be inferred that the misfortune of the republican army muſt be very conſiderable. All the baggage and artillery of reſerve is to be ſent to Limburg on the Lahn, whilſt the army will chooſe a good ſtand behind the Mein, where they will wait for the numerous reinforcements which are ſent to them from all parts.

In the mean time, the imperialiſts are filing down the river with a conſiderable force, and if they are not arreſted in their career by unforeſeen events, it is to be apprehended, the army of gen. Jourdan will be obliged to re-croſs the Rhine. Gen. Moreau will alſo have to fall back to prevent his left wing being ſurrounded by the imperialiſts, and an attack in the rear. The greateſt part of the troops beſieging the fortreſs of Ehrenberitſtein are ordered from there towards the Mein and very few ſent to replace them. The letters from Frankfort, Neuwied, Coblentz and Trier, mention, that an aſtoniſhing number of wounded are daily brought to their hoſpitals, and that the roads are covered with waggons loaded with theſe unfortunates—we expect to ſee during this week ſtrong reinforcements to paſs through this city, which will come from the interior of the republic and reſort to the army of gen. Jourdan, as alſo a great quantity of artillery and ammunition.

HAGUE, September 13.

A petition of a great number of inhabitants of the city of Arnheim, has been preſented to the National Convention, bitterly complaining about the oppreſſive charge of quartering troops in their houſes, & in particular about the ordinance of the committee of the country, which commands the inhabitants to furniſh to each ſoldier 1 half pound pork, 1 pot of beer, &c at the rate of 3 ſtivres, whilſt ſaid articles cannot be provided for at leſs than 9 or 10 ſtivres. They repreſent this burthen as the more aggravating as the inhabitants have already ſuffered unceaſingly by the long continuance of the war. They further expreſs, that no inſtance of ſuch an impoſition has been experienced during the adminiſtration of the Stadholders or under any deſpotic government—which grievance when not removed will compel the petitioners to uſe reſiſtance.

HALIFAX, October 6.

Extract of a letter from Trepaſſey, dated 9th September, 1796.

"The French ſquadron anchored the 5th at the Bay of Bulls, and landed 2,000 men in the courſe of three hours; next morning they totally conſumed it by fire, making priſoners of the principal inhabitants. They intend to march to St. John's, where there is now 4,500 men in arms and all the fortifications manned.—The 50 gun ſhip, 2 frigates and 1 ſloop, that are at St. John's, are ſtationed in the narrows, and every body ſeems inclined to think they will give them a warm reception. But it is the univerſal opinion that whether they ſucceed in their attempt on St. John's or not, they will totally deſtroy the out harbors."

Tueſday evening arrived here the brig Jane, Capt. Pryor, from Quebec, but laſt from Bradore, a harbour on the Labradore ſhore, where captain Pryor arrived on the 18th of September. Off that harbor, the day he arrived there, he ſpoke his majeſty's ſhip Pearl, with the Quebec convoy, conſiſting of 14 ſail, homeward bound. The ſame night a heavy gale of wind came on, and the next morning the Pearl and three ſail only of the convoy were to be ſeen from the ſhore. On the 22d, an expreſs arrived from Fortau, a ſettlement in the Streights of Belleiſle, informing that three frigates belonging to the French ſquadron, had made their appearance off Temple Bay: that they ſtood in ſo near as to be fired at from a ſmall fort which was erected on ſhore, which induced them to ſtand off again. This expreſs alſo brought intelligence, that the three frigates were afterwards ſeen near the Quebec fleet, which was at the time in the narroweſt parts of the Streights of Belleiſle.

Twelve ſail of ſquare rigged veſſels belonging to Dartmouth, Poole, &c. were about half loaded in the adjacent harbors, where they were expoſed to the deſtructive ravages of the enemy.
